

Conflict, Compassion, and Courage

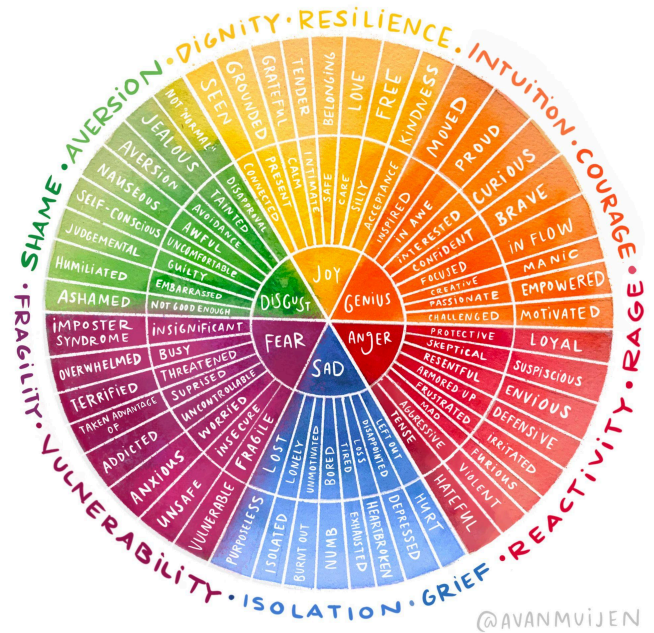

ALA 240: Living Well in College and Beyond for Developing Student Leaders

Part One: Reflect on recent conflict

	What were you feeling before and during the interaction?	What did you do and say? Any judgments (self or others)?
Describe a recent STRESSFUL interaction:
On a scale of 1-10, was this situation resolved to your liking? How are you feeling about it now?

Part Two: General Reflection

What are your most common feelings during conflict?

What is your primary conflict style?

- How do you approach typical conflicts and arguments?
- What's your assertiveness level?
- How much do you want to cooperate with the other person?

How did your identities and lived experiences shape your ideas about conflict?

Part Three: Using the pre-write from Part One, reflect on CLARA

	Present	Absent
Center Remaining calm in order to maintain a productive conversation
Listen Active listening to understand the other person's point of view
Affirm Acknowledge that you understand what was shared
Respond Reply to the information you were given and/or ask open ended questions
Add Contribute your ideas and/or feelings to the conversation

Part Four: Practicing the Non-Violent Communication (NVC)

4-Step Nonviolent Communication (NVC) Template: using "I" statements
1. What action or words did you notice or observe? I noticed...
2. What feelings did you experience because of your observation? I felt...
3. What are your needs or values in the situation? I need... or I value...
4. What request or ask do you have to resolve the situation? I ask that...

